NATIONAL UNION NOMINATIONS.

For President,
ABRAHAM LINCOLN,
Of Illinois

For Vice-President,
ANDREW JOHNSON,
Of Tennessee

For Presidential Electors,
GEORGE L WOODS, of Washington County,
H W GRIGGS, of Linn County,
J F GAILEY, of Douglas County

The Popular Candidates.

That Abraham Lincoln and Andrew Johnson are the most acceptable candidates to the people of the Free States for the highest offices in their gift has already been demonstrated so far as it is possible for a positive demonstration previous to their being elected and installed—they assuredly will be. The honest radicals who nominated Fremont done so in the hope that at the Convention at Chicago would endorse and ratify the nomination of Fremont and Cochrane and thus at least secure the entire political field to war parties pledged to carry out the work which Mr Lincoln had so nobly begun. In this move they failed, and, upon looking around among the supporters of their candidates of against Lincoln and Johnson, they found nearly all the War Democrats from among the masses of the and that but very few of the Anti-War Democrats still adhered to their old party and that only in the hope that a loyal ticket would be nominated upon a Union war platform. The Convention at Chicago met, emptied its minor sewers of treason into one mammoth conduit of Knavish hypocrisy, with McClellan and Pendleton sounding therein, and "adjourned to meet at the call of the committee," in other pleasant, and more truthful terms adjourned to meet when their Commander-in-chief and Lieut. General deemed the time had come for them to unfurl in armed array to assassinate the loyal citizens of the United States of America in their own homes and by their own firesides.

The Fremont party, recognizing that Providence which sundered the Democratic party at Charleston and placed Abraham Lincoln at the head of a free-thinking nation saw the necessity of at once compelling the withdrawal of Fremont and Cochrane and of adhering en masse to the great principle for which they were contending and of which Abraham Lincoln stood forth the heaven-appointed champion. In the majority of instances their opposition to Mr. Lincoln had been too much of a personal nature, arising from contested claims, disappointment or from sympathy with some friend or favorite whose imaginary grievances were too long, in the presence of demands upon the Executive time unredressed. The war Democrats not only counseled, but to some extent compelled, a relinquishment of all claims to the Presidency by Fremont, and they determined to stand shoulder to shoulder in zealous support of the one great exponent of the true principle of self government—Abraham Lincoln. There they stand to-day—and there they will stand on the Eighth of November—until treason is made to hide its hideous form, and England takes back "through Canada" the Garibaldi rifles and other murderous weapons with which the firelings of Jeff Davis sought to frighten the freemen of the North. Let the Union men of Oregon take courage. They must also exercise care. If were ever needful now to relax one pot of effort to secure the victory. We not only require it for our own peace and happiness at home, but we must stand with our three votes in the electoral college among the proud galaxy of States who are conscious of having done their whole duty to themselves, their country and their God.

A DESIRABLE ROUTE.—A correspondent forming to the much talked of route from Red Bluff to the Owyhee country, says that it passes over beautiful sandy plains, through magnificent groves of sage brush, snow fringed by innumerable pools of alkali, interspersed with magnificent insulae rock which serves to give the country that unfulfilling appearance so delightful to the eye. Of the inhabitants of this delightful region, he says, it is densely populated by tarantulas, centipedes, scorpions and rattlesnake which interesting companions people the country clear down to Red Bluff. The distance by this charming route is not known as it has not been measured, neither is it likely to be, as the individual is yet to be found who is willing to travel it a second time. It is thought, however, that the trip can be made in the course of a single season, provided the parties send their freight by water and travel with empty wagons. The writer of the above says he has been over the Red Bluff route, and thinks his letch scarcely does it justice.

FROM LONG CAPITAL.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE DAILY OREGONIAN.]

SALEM, Oct 19th, 1864.

HOUSE—IN THE MORNING.

Reports of committees were in order in course of which Mr Wakefield from Committee on Commerce reported in favor of S J Memorial relative to Treaty of Reciprocity with the Sandwich Islands, and Mr Hallett made a minority report against the same, taking the position that Government is able to attend to her own business without our help. The question arising upon the passage of the memorial, Mr Gallagher took a lynch at the Legislature, thought we had a little nothing more important than Congress should remove the existing duties on sugar, coffee, &c.

Mr Kay answered that the agricultural and commercial interests of the Pacific Coast needed to be nourished, that the Government before the War was the most stable and wealthy and prosperous that ever had existed, that it was now the recollection, and he supposed that everyone present had some of

BOOKKEEPERS, BOOKKEEPING AND PENMANSHIP.—It is a notorious fact that the ordinary routine of business on the Pacific coast is very much behind the age. Especially is this the case between this city and San Francisco. Here we are accustomed to do business in a manner entirely different from that pursued in the Golden City. We are accused very often of being behind the times, and not keeping pace with the progress of the age. Now, we ask the question, who is there in all Oregon at the present time, that does not feel sufficiently interested in the welfare of our golden city to wish to see it the commercial emporium of our vast and extensive territory? Who does not feel sufficiently interested in the welfare of our own individual business to wish to see it conducted in a manner that will secure to us the greatest amount of success

THE LOYAL INSURRECTION OF SAN FRANCISCO.—It is a truth greatly to be regretted that many Irishmen on this coast have fallen blindly into the trap set for them by the shameless demagogues of the Copperhead party. We have some such in our own community—good men socially but so wedded to the name of Democracy that they forget that the party which bears that emblem has ceased to be a National party, but a corrupt organization with no object in view save the advancement of Southern interests and the demoralizement of the Union. It is highly gratifying, however, to know that thousands of good, loyal Irishmen are now battling under the Stars and Stripes in defence of liberty and the land of their adoption. Neither are we under the disagreeable necessity of characterizing the Irishmen of this coast as affiliating with the disunionists as a body. On the contrary there are very many of the sons of the Emerald Isle who can boast as fine patriotic Union sentiments as any in America, and who, when the election is over, will cast their votes for Lincoln and Johnson. A very large meeting of the loyal Irishmen of San Francisco was held in that city on the evening of the 6th inst., glowing accounts of which appear in the city papers. The News of the 7th says:

It gives us pleasure to call attention to the meeting of loyal Irish citizens held last evening in Platt's upper Hall, the proceedings of which are published elsewhere. Shortly after 8 o'clock Mr. Michael Connell, an intelligent and talented son of the Emerald Isle, presided, and the speeches were made by Irishmen and by Irishmen of Irishmen, in that fervid and brilliant style of oratory peculiar to the gifted sons of Erin.

The audience was composed chiefly of Irishmen, and their wild enthusiasm in response to the eloquent appeals made to their patriotism for the land of their adoption, was most gratifying to witness. They were men of mind and character—men who think and reason and feel, who love this Government for the liberty it affords them, and the blessings it secures to their children, for the hope it inspires of and for the down-trodden country of their birth, for the affection they bear to our free institutions, and most of all because they are unwilling to be classed among Copperhead traitors.

This meeting, so astonishingly large and enthusiastic, is only the initiatory movement of a revolution yet to be effected in Irish sentiment. If those misguided Irishmen who have identified themselves with the Copperheads could only be induced to attend the Club which was organized last night, and listen to the words of truth as spoken by their own orators, they would feel ashamed of themselves for the false position in which they have been placed and desert the ranks of the traitors who have laid a snare to entrap them to their undoing.

The following resolution was presented by one of the secretaries and after being heartily applauded, was signed by 250 Irishmen before the meeting adjourned:

We, the undersigned, Irishmen by birth but Americans by adoption, hereby form ourselves into a Hibernian Union Lincoln and Johnson Club, our object being to aid the cause of the Union and sustain the Government of the United States. To this we pledge ourselves, and also to protect and defend each other, and to vote for Abraham Lincoln of Illinois, and Andy Johnson of Tennessee the nominees for President and Vice President of the Union National Convention assembled at Baltimore.
